

INCLUSIVE GROWTH AND POLITICAL CONSENSUS
AFTER JULY 15TH WORKSHOP*Hilton Garden Inn Diyarbakır*3 March 2017

The 15 July 2016 failed coup attempt has left Turkey in a state of further uncertainty, complicating the possibilities for resolution of conflicts and political consensus. The Kurdish question and polarization has been significant barriers for stability and economic development in the country. Lack of communication and reconciliation negatively affect the prospects for conflict resolution. “Inclusive Growth and Political Consensus After July 15th Workshop” aims to offer a roadmap to help address the problems by identifying the main obstacles for inclusive growth and political consensus. The workshop will bring together prominent members from academia, bureaucracy, media, business and civil society circles who will examine the influence of current situation on political and economic stability, and contribute to the endeavors for creating dialogue and consensus.
